

The Daily Pie is a new café gallery opening in Collector on 25 March 2010. It is owned and will be operated by the De Bruin family of Collector.

Helen De Bruin, who has worked beside husband Andre in the fit out of the new business, will be chief pie cook. Helen brings to the business her credentials as a member of the well known catering family the Hudsons. She has a wealth of catering and food hospitality experience.

Andre De Bruin, a metalsmith by trade, has undertaken the redesign and refit of the old Golden Fleece Service Station premises including the building of a gleaming new commercial kitchen. The gallery side of the business will shortly be selling a seasonal range of metal art for the home and garden, designed and made by Andre in his metal workshop over the road from the café gallery.

Daughters Emma and Sarah, trained baristas, will be front of house, working Thursday to Sunday serving in the café.

The Daily Pie is at 8 Church Street, Collector, diagonally opposite Collector's iconic concrete sculpture. Phone 02 4848 0123. Web www.thedailypie.com.au
Email pies@thedailypie.com.au

Business hours are 10 to 5 Friday to Monday. Special opening hours as advertised during the snow season and for special events.